

1 min to read

World Health Organization (WHO) reports that 12 million people are infected with the disease every year.

The disease is caused by a virus that is spread through the air. It is a common illness that affects people of all ages.

Approximately 6 million people die from the disease each year.

The disease is a leading cause of death in many developing countries. It is a preventable illness that can be treated.

The disease is caused by a virus that is spread through the air. It is a common illness that affects people of all ages.

Approximately 12 million people are infected with the disease every year.

WHO D

WHO D reports that 12 million people are infected with the disease every year.

WHO D reports that 12 million people are infected with the disease every year. WHO D reports that 12 million people are infected with the disease every year.

WHO D reports that 12 million people are infected with the disease every year.

